Subject: Nomination for the 2022 Chinese Government Scholarship Auditing Master Program (CGSAMP) in Nanjing Audit University

Dear colleague,

On behalf of the National Audit Office of China (CNAO), I am pleased to inform you that, in 2022 the Nanjing Audit University (NAU) will continue its Chinese Government Scholarship Auditing Master Program (CGSAMP), which is open to eligible candidates recommended by supreme audit institutions (SAIs) in developing countries, and I am writing to invite you to make nomination for the 2022 CGSAMP.

Currently, SAIs face new challenges such as the rapid technology development, global climate change, and growing expectations for SAI's role in promoting good governance and are quickly adapting themselves to the new environment. Innovative audit ideas, techniques, methodologies are emerging to enable more value-added audits. The Covid-19 pandemic is making such changes happen sooner and faster. In this context, capacity building has become more important than ever for every SAI. In 2016, under the support of CNAO and Ministry of Education of China, the NAU launched the CGSAMP, designed for training high-level and application-oriented auditors who are competent in professional ethics, and equipped with systematic knowledge and skills of modern government auditing. So far more than 200 people have successfully graduated from the program and feedback from both SAIs and students about the program are very encouraging.

NAU is the only institution of higher learning around the world that carries "AUDIT" in its name, and also considered as one of the cradles of auditors in China. CNAO's Audit Academy is located on NAU campus and shares courses, teachers and teaching materials with NAU. Around 20 Auditors General of various SAIs, have been awarded NAU Honorary Professorship and lectured on various occasions.

The CGSAMP Program is a two-year program open for application to SAIs around the world as well as other institutions recommended by SAIs. All courses are offered in English. The curriculum of CGSAMP consists of four parts, namely, general courses, core professional courses, selective courses and practice/internship. In consideration of travel limitation under the current global pandemic, admitted students will stay in their own countries respectively and receive all the courses online. Travel arrangement to China will be made when travel restrictions due to COVID-19 are relaxed. In this program, students will remotely engage in classroom training, discussions and case studies, participate as observers in international seminars held by NAU virtually. Apart from instructors (including Honorary Professors) from NAU itself, senior audit experts from CNAO may also conduct classes or deliver lectures to the students.

Eligible applicants will receive scholarship from CGSAMP to cover the relevant expenditures, more information regarding this can be found in the attached Enrollment Information.

If you wish to make nomination for the 2022 CGSAMP, please refer to Enrollment Information attached to this letter, and nominate FOUR candidates from your SAI, internal audit institutions, public accounting firms or persons aspiring to government auditing. Your nominees are required to complete the on-line application procedures as required in the Enrollment Information.
